General instructions

- You should carefully read Chapter IV of the Administrative and Financial Handbook before submitting your report form.
http://eacea.ec.europa.eu/erasmus_mundus/beneficiaries/documents/action1/sga_emmc_annex_iv_handbook_2011.pdf
- The report form covers the activities of the entire reporting period. The reporting period is the period elapsed since the start of the activities of the joint programme or the submission of the last report form (i.e. progress report, further pre-financing request or final report).
- Because of the overlapping activities between consecutive editions (/intakes) of the Masters Course, the report must address all on-going editions as well as the activities implemented for the preparation of the next one.
- The report must cover both the activities related to the implementation and management of the Masters Course by the consortium (including the management of the individual scholarships), and the activities of the scholarship holders (students and invited scholars).
- The report form must be submitted by the beneficiary on behalf of the Erasmus Mundus Masters' Course consortium. The financial declaration at the end of the form (section C.1. and/or C.2.) confirms that a process of consultation and approval has been carried out by the consortium. It is therefore important that the required information is collected in good time before the deadline for submission of the report.

- In order to avoid a rejection of the report, you are invited to strictly follow the instructions outlined in Part A – Technical part including the mandatory checklist (see Chapter IV part B of the Administrative and Financial Handbook).

PART A: TECHNICAL PART

1.1. Academic observations (e.g. course delivery, course module adaptations, student performance, internal/external course evaluation, enrolled students, integration week, mobility paths, summer & winter schools, language courses etc.)

Consortium composition and course organisation. Academic observations. Every year the Universities of Bologna (1st semester) and Cadiz (2nd semester) are hosting the taught programme. For those starting in 2012-13, following the model exposed on the project the 1st academic year have fulfilled in almost 100% all the academic requirements designed in the proposal. For the 2nd year, the research period, students have been spread throughout the Consortium for the dissertation phase. They are currently being matched with dissertation topics and host institutions for the research period that started on September 2013. The teaching structure has not changed significantly from the original proposal. Exams have been structured in different ways depending on the teachers: written, oral or preparing articles and reports. Each professor made available three different dates for the examination. The course offers the students a choice from a wide range of modules as shown in the lists of the modules offered below:

University of Bologna offers a set of core modules, valid of 6 ECTS during the 1st semester as follows:

1. Bioassessment of Freshwater Ecosystems. In order to understand how climate changes may affect processes of water pollution, the course provided the students with an understanding of the driving forces of surface and ground water flow and of the quantities of water involved.
2. The Hydrological Cycle and Climate Change. The student learned the relationship between biota and the abiotic factors in freshwater lotic and lentic ecosystems and gained knowledge of the main taxonomic and functional groups of freshwater organisms, skills in the sampling of freshwater organisms and in the identification of freshwater organisms at a basic level.
3. Environmental economics and resource management in water policy making.
4. Planning and decision making in water basins and coastal systems. Courses 3 and 4. With reference to water and coastal management the students understood the concept of sustainability and of strategic environmental assessment (SEA). They also gained knowledge on the sustainability measure and learned how to embody strategic and risk assessment into sustainability assessment and on the pricing and evaluation of the common goods in water policy making and the role of water in economics; they became able to evaluate costs of alternative actions and inactions; the theory and the practice of risk assessment and management regarding technological and environmental health hazards.
5. Environmental Impact and risk assessment for the society in water and coastal management. The students approached planning and decision making with reference to water and coastal management and learned how to use scenarios techniques becoming acquainted with decision support systems (DSS).

Master students performed several fieldtrips, together with the Teachers and their collaborators assisting for technical approaches, sample collections and in situ measuring. For all courses, students carried out practical work in the informatics laboratory, using the most advanced software. Students also performed laboratory toxicity assays.

University of Cádiz offered optional modules, valid of 2 ECTS as listed: Weight of Evidence Assessment of Chemical Contamination in Aquatic Environments; Chemical and ecotoxicological guidelines for the management of dredged material: regulation of disposal in open waters; Sensitive tools for the assessment of Environmental and Human risk; Tools for hazard assessment of chemical and complex environmental media; Eutrophication and Hypoxia; Bioavailability and bioaccumulation: Keys for the quality of ecosystems; Seagrass management tools in human impacted areas; Tools for general environmental quality assessment; General methodology to assess coastal area quality; Basis for sediments and dredged material management; Integrative assessment of sediment quality in aquatic ecosystems; Water quality in mining areas; Scientific and technical strategies for CO₂ mitigation in coastal ecosystems; Integrated concepts for water and coastal management; Coastal flooding hazard; Conflict Resolution; Communication Science; Research activities; Scientific diving in coastal research; Freshwater Systems of the World; Coast of World... Particular attention is paid to ensuring the important skills for masters graduates are covered including for example, written and oral presentation, data management and modelling and fieldwork. The lists of modules offered by University of Cadiz are up to 50 ECTS, more than 10 in laboratory skills, 10 on fieldtrips through Cadiz Bay, Tinto & Odiel River Mining (Huelva), Roman ruins of Bologna Town (Cadiz)...

Student performance. Upon their arrival, master students had an introductory course to help them to settle into their new country. At the beginning of the mobility for each institution, students should absolve bureaucratic duties, resident permit and language courses. All students received materials to make easy the start of the lectures and studies: copybook, block notes, pens, usb keys, internet keys for the wi-fi connection, a card for making copies and printing, etc. During the academic year, they also received reprints, articles, manuals, etc. necessary for their studies. They had to take an English course, so to improve the language knowledge, which was not very good for all students. The scientific background was also different among them; as a consequence of this, in addition to the language difficulties in some cases, they were required to make strong efforts. The presence of the students at the teaching activity was daily registered and their performance was followed in continuous by oral or written tests and short power point presentations developed by the students on specific topics. The first presentation of the series was on their Country environmental problems.

Internal/External course evaluation. All students have filled up evaluation forms for any of the modules they attend. At the University of Bologna, students filled up two series of questionnaire, one proposed by the Italian University itself and one proposed by the Consortium. These two forms were useful to bring improvements and make possible changes for the next cohort. University of Cadiz uses also two different evaluation forms, one required by the Consortium, and a general evaluation of the master programme at the end of the academic course. As main coordinator, University of Cadiz proceeds to make the statistical data to see the results, at the end of the edition programme.

Enrolled students. All master students are enrolled at the University of Cadiz, Spain, main coordinator and they will defend their dissertation at Cadiz in order to finish their master studies. The mobility academic records are provided under Erasmus Mobility among the institutions part of the Wacoma Consortium. Although enrolled at the University of Cadiz, all students were officially registered at the University of Bologna, those from non-EU Country after presenting the visa and the stay permission. In this way all students got the rights of the University of Bologna students, from the use of the electronic resources to the access in all University areas, libraries, etc.

Integration Week. All students arrived in Ravenna between 10th and 14th September 2012 as requested. The tutor (Mss. Volpe) welcomed each single student at the rail station of Ravenna taking each one to the apartment in the residence located in the centre town. Everybody received information material about the city, the University and in general about living in Ravenna (location of information and tourist points, discounts and shops with discounts for students, libraries, etc.). The first two weeks in Ravenna were needed to complete all the bureaucratic practices about registration in the different administrative offices and the Police. In particular the extra-European students had to register their incoming to the Police and start the application for requiring the residence permit. After receiving the fiscal code number by Incoming Office, the secretary of the University completed also the registrations to the course and provided a badge with a personal student number. University of Cadiz run an Induction Week for foreign students in February, at the arrival of the master students for the 2nd semester. The aim was to introduce new international students to different aspects of being a student in Cadiz and Spain. They were also provided by email from UCA, wifi-connection, library access, and sport facilities. The Erasmus Mundus at UCA office provided them accommodation and travel to Cadiz from Bologna for the 2nd mobility.

Mobility. Erasmus Mundus students spend the first terms in one institution, University of Bologna, from September till February, and then, they moved to University of Cadiz, for 2nd semester. The Visa process was easier than previous years for International students, due that Wacoma consortium combines two process for the studies resident permit. All master students applied for the Visa in the Italian Embassy in each home country. Once they arrived, all they applied for resident permit at Italy and they got it with different periods but enough to make the mobility to Spain, and then, applied in Cadiz, for the renewal of the permit. Everything was working properly without any problem, and they also got the extension for continuing their master studies at the research period. They visit a third institution for their dissertation or remain on one of the previous institutions visited during the 1st academic year if their research topic is related to. The decision about where each student will go for their dissertation is agreed by the consortium members following discussions about the student's chosen topic area and the institution's ability to support such a study. This is a difficult process but it is helped enormously by the good relationship between all partners. (see Annex 1 in attachment)

Language courses. At University of Bologna, lessons of Italian language were given twice a week to help learning the language and ensure an easier integration in the everyday life. The English levels were very different among students, and for some the level was below the certification produced in the application. An Environmental English course of 6 ECTS was given by a mother tongue teacher. University of Cadiz provides a Spanish Language course at the arrival of the master students for the 2nd semester with 40 hours of teaching and personal work from the students, with a final exam, written and oral presentation. Some of the students did not follow the language course.

1.2 Administrative & Financial management within the consortium (e.g. internal coordination, student selection management, relations with partners/associated partners, use of the lump sum/flat rate, sustainability, promotional activities, internships, website, etc.)

Wacoma Consortium has made 4th coordination meetings (two per year) from the beginning of the Wacoma Programme. The 1st meeting was located at University of Cádiz, as main coordinator for the Selection process for the candidates for 2012-14 academic year. In this meeting, selected candidates and visiting scholars, implementation of the programme, planning teaching modules, visa planning for Italy and Spain, how to manage the travel budget for master students, payment of the scholarships, were discussed during the meeting from 5th to 8th February 2012 attending the meeting the main coordinators from each institution from the Wacoma Consortium. The 2nd coordination meeting was in University of Bologna, Campus Ravenna, from 25th & 28th September 2012, at the arrival of the master students for the 1st semester with a Welcome meeting, oral presentation about the requirements of the programme, and discussion about the problems that master students found at the beginning of the programme. One of the master students from Category B, Alisa Alickolli with Albanian nationality, but living in Greece for more than 5 years, complained about the budget of her category scholarship. She explained to the Agency her conditions for resident permit at Greece, but she accepted the scholarship knowing that she was included in Category B due to her background living in Europe. The discussion was solved. Another problem encountered two month later was related to the master student, Bardukh Gabrielyan, from Armenia, who had to suspend his scholarship for 4 month at University of Bologna for medical reasons. We informed to the Agency, and Wacoma Consortium agreed with the Agency and the master student that he came back to University of Cadiz for the 2nd semester and he applied for Bologna modules, during summer to get the 30 ECTS credits from the first semester, sending to the Bologna's coordinator, Mrs. Fabbri, the assessments for those modules that he did not attend. In the 3rd coordination meeting, at University of Cadiz, from 28th to 31st January, Wacoma consortium reviewed the progress of the master students and proposed the topic for the research period in the 2nd academic year. During 4th coordination meeting at Bologna, Campus of Ravenna in September, 2013, from 25th to 28th September, 2013, coordinators from the consortium defined the guidelines for the master thesis and also checked that all master students proposals were accepted and properly defined. The coordinator and other personal involved in the programme have conducted active bilateral meetings during different dates along the academic course with partners and associated of the consortium. In this sense, the coordinator has visited our partners in Brazil (UNISANTA) and Russia (RSHU) and participated in different initiatives to design and execute the research lines proposed by them as bilateral opportunities for the students. Also, the coordinator has conducted meetings with different associates in Spain, Russia, and Brazil to discuss about the possibilities of different students to conduct the period of research. Furthermore, it has been developed different initiatives and meetings with Teachers participating in the lectures, and private enterprites to explore the opportunities for the students to conduct the research period.

Promotional activities. The University of Bologna organized a welcoming ceremony introducing the Wacoma course and the students to the Italian teachers and students with an ethnic lunch. Several newspapers and local TVs reported about it. Master students were presented to the scientific community in the presence of the Coordinators, Prof. Del Valls, Prof. Newton and Prof. Fabbri. Brochures were prepared to be disseminated during the year, together with poster presentations, magazine articles, conferences in Ravenna and Bologna, and promotion in occasions of visit and lectures given in other Italian Universities. Brochures in English were also prepared by the Bologna international office, and delivered abroad and on specific international websites. University of Cadiz has implemented a Doctoral School for Posgraduate Office including international student experiences. Master students also participated in the 4th Scarce International Conference, organized by CSIC as volunteers in order to learn how to manage seminars and congress. The EMA representative students also organized a meeting at the Campus of Puerto Real for all Erasmus Mundus students for master and Ph.D. programme. Visiting European scholars have also disseminated and promoted the Erasmus Mundus programmes, in different countries as Brazil, by Prof. Angel del Valls in UNISANTA university with presentations and chats, interviews with possible candidates for incoming years. Prof. Alice Newton and Prof. John Icely did the same in Brazil and China institutions.

During the first semester at the University of Bologna, teachers were very committed and eager to start the Wacoma Programme. Since the beginning students had the plan of the activities (schedule of frontal lessons, laboratories and fieldtrips) which was regularly and fully realized. Interactive lessons were set up with most professors, reading the most recent literature or making oral presentation on particularly relevant topics; these served both for exercise in critical reading and to practice the technical English language. The work the students were required to perform was relevant. At the University of Cadiz, the teaching structure was completed with internal teachers from the institution and also many visiting scholars under the budget from the Erasmus Mundus Programme, which contributed to have an average of contents quite diverse. The optional modules set has been found as a good opportunity to create master students' profile much better. They also evaluated these teachers properly due to the variety of their lectures and master student have also showed their interest in the information related to the different home countries that teachers came from.

1.4 Positive experience (e.g. examples of good practice/success stories, improvements within the course delivery and/or in the consortium management, student placements, etc.). The extremely high quality of the students is the most positive aspect. The integration of the students, mainly Category A, has also been excellent; they have formed firm friendships within the group and also with the Category B students. The only discussion at the beginning of the master course was the unequal treatment accorded to the European students (Category B) who have less studentship than those for Category A, and the Category B travel budget is only possible if they are visiting to third countries, but no budget for the mobility among European countries. The quality of the students was good, however some of them did not performed very well at the beginning. Indeed, they got relatively low marks in some disciplines, rather new for most of them. The positive aspect was that they improved progressively during the year. A qualified person (Tutor) specifically assisting the students was essential during their arrival to each institution, Mss. Volpe (Unibo) and Mss. Lopez (UCA). Students were extremely positive towards the Tutor assistance not only for academic issues but for instalment, medical assistance, resident permits, bank..., which was delivered without restriction in hours and days.

1.5 Preparation of the next intake. The English knowledge was an issue that has to be solved; this could be done through a selection more accurate, supported by Internationally recognized certificates of profit and possibly by an interview. The tight course calendar during the first semester (6 hours/day, 5 days/week), the novelties of the programs and the requirements by the teachers imposed to the students noticeable efforts. An improvement will be carried out by extending the teaching period, starting around September 15th, and continue until the first week of December. The lessons will be given during almost 3 months, only in the morning, with the possible exception of Italian courses and fieldtrips. Having free afternoons, the student will have more time to concentrate on their studies.

1.6 Problems and difficulties encountered (e.g. student late arrival, drop-outs, course promotion for Cat. B students, managing EMT database, visa issues, etc.). In July 2012 the University of Bologna started to contact the Italian Embassy in the students' Countries to provide all the information and the documents needed for obtaining the Visa. All students received the Invitation Letter from the University of Bologna and the Insurance Certificate by Cadiz University. In that way all the students went to the Italian Embassy withdrawing the Visa in a few weeks. After received the Visa, the University of Cadiz sent to each student the flight ticket to arrive in Italy at the airport of Bologna. To be noted that some obtained the visa for 6 months and someone else for one year, although the request sent by the Italian Coordinator to the different Embassies was the same. As an overall, the 2012-13 student cohort did not encounter problems on Visa deliver; small problems (e.g. hospitalization of one student; money retrieval from the bank) at the University of Bologna were rapidly solved by the Tutor and the Institutional Coordinator. At their arrival to University of Cadiz, those master students who needed to apply for resident permit proceed to do it and there were no problem for the mobility. On major problem was related with the student Bardukh Gabrielyan (Armenia), who came to Ravenna during September 2012, but had to go back home and sent a medical certificate supporting his request to postpone the first semester activities. He was paid for two months scholarship, and addressed to fill up the assessment via online. The request was accepted by the Consortium and informed to the Erasmus Mundus Agency, and following their instructions, Wacoma Consortium decided to allow him to continue with the master programme. The master student came to University of Cadiz to finish his 2nd semester, and he finally exceeded the compulsory 30 ECTS. The first semester activities are under review yet, being the deadline on December, 2013.

1.7 Follow-up since the last report (in case specific information has been requested by the EACEA as a result of the assessment of the last report submitted).

1.8 Specify the amount of participation costs charged to European and non-European students enrolled in the Master course:
